Re: Change to guarantee period

Dear Customer,

The vast majority of the Atlas tanks that you sell are Bunded. The promotion of this approach towards safe oil storage has been a strong focus by the company and our sales records demonstrate that together we have been very successful in this aim. To further underline this achievement and in line with many others in the industry, would you please be advised that Atlas Tanks are changing its guarantee period on single skin tanks. Single skin Tanks that are manufactured after 1st December 2008 will carry a two year guarantee.

We believe that;

- This will further promote and encourage the use of bunded tanks.
- In due course the control of pollution regulations should be changed such that bunded tanks become mandatory in all domestic applications.
- Bunded tanks are the most effective method of safeguarding both your customer and the environment from potential oil spills

Yours sincerely

Tim Clark
